General Rules

ARTICLE 4 – (1) The general rules relating to the implementation of this Bylaw have been mentioned below:

a) The coupons used in making bets must be filled out in full and completely by the bettors. The information on the ticket, produced by the betting data-processing system through processing of the coupons that have been filled out by the betting game terminal at the hippodromes and stationary dealers, is taken as the basis. In case the serial number written on the ticket automatically by betting data-processing system is damaged beyond detection or the serial number or barcode is deleted or scraped, no payment is made to these tickets and also the tickets that have not been identified as winning tickets according to the records in the betting data-processing system are not paid. Ticket are owned by the bearer. The Racing Organization cannot be held responsible for the loss or changing hands of the winning tickets for any reason or for the payment to be made to the person who submits the ticket.

b) Betting sales are made by the counters set up or stationary dealers and virtual dealers authorized by the Racing Organization at locations deemed appropriate by it. Sales are made in cash. Credit card or installment payments cannot be made. Each dealer must get on a weekly basis from the system database of the Racing Organization the betting game report indicating the amounts of sales, cancellations, rebates, payments made and bonuses earned.

c) The numbers to be carried by the horses that will take part in a race are indicated in the daily official schedule. However, if an error occurs in them:

1) In case the mistake is discovered before the race starts, the betting sales are stopped until this case is corrected and announced and the participation fees of those who placed bets on the wrong number are returned.

2) In case the mistake is discovered after the race ended but before the announcement of the winners’ share, the participation fees of those who placed bets on the wrong number are returned.

3) In case the mistake is discovered after the announcement of the winners’ share, no changes and corrections are made on the result and appeals are not taken into account.

SECTION TWO

General Rules and Types of Betting
c) The winners’ share to be paid to the winning bettor in return for every one Turkish Lira that he placed on the winning combination cannot be less than 1.05 lira.

d) Betting sales are made at the latest until the races which are bet on start. The application changes related to the cancellation of the tickets played are posted on the official website of the Racing Organization.

e) If any race whose start has been considered null and void by the Racing Council of Stewards is repeated following the races on the same day, betting sales or cancellations are allowed in all games, which could be played on a single race such as win (winner), place, place double, quinella, exacta, trifecta (triple), quartet, and first five in order, that have been played on that race until the new starting time specified a new by the Racing Council of Stewards for the race to be repeated. In case the race with the faulty start that has been decided by the Racing Council of Stewards to be repeated following the races on the same day makes up the first leg of the games depending on multiple races such as double, pick 3, pick 4, pick 5, pick 6, pick 7, place “n”, single “n”, sales and cancellation transactions for these games are possible until the starting time of the race that makes up the second leg of the bets, not until the new starting time for this race.

f) After the OK sign was given and the final result was notified to the Racing Organization in writing by the Racing Council of Stewards, the Racing Organization calculates and announces the winners’ shares for that race. Following this announcement, the payment is made by authorized counters to winning bettors upon request. If betting has been made on schedules for races conducted abroad, the winners’ share for these races are calculated and announced according to the final results posted on the official websites of the institutions that organize these races or market these races for the Racing Organization and have an agreement signed with the Racing Organization.

g) The Racing Organization is responsible for all sorts of payments to the holders of right related to betting. The provisions of the Tax Procedural Law no. 213 dated 4/1/1961 are applicable in the payment transactions. The time for collecting the winners’ share is one year including the day that the race was run, ending at 17:00 hours on the last day.

h) The Management Board of Betting is responsible to the Racing Authority for organizing and managing the betting. The Management Board of Betting must provide the Racing Authority, if requested, with the betting balance sheet for the racing day within twenty-four hours.

i) The Management Board of Betting is responsible to the Racing Authority for organizing and managing the betting. The Management Board of Betting must provide the Racing Authority, if requested, with the betting balance sheet for the racing day within twenty-four hours.

j) The Racing Organization is responsible for all sorts of payments to the holders of right related to betting. l) All sorts of announcements concerning the implementation of this Bylaw are made through the media owned by the Racing Organization.

Types of betting

ARTICLE 5 – (1) The types of betting that could be made on a single race are as follows:

a) Win is a bet placed on a horse which is predicted to come the first in a race. Place is a bet that is made by predicting that a particular horse would come the first or second in races that are run with five or six horses, that a horse would come the first or second or third in races that are run with seven or more horses and by placing the bet on that horse or horses.

b) Place is a bet that is made by predicting that a particular horse would come the first or second in races that are run with five or six horses, that a horse would come the first or second or third in races that are run with seven or more horses and by placing the bet on that horse or horses.

Place double is a bet that is made by predicting the two horses with different positions that would be included in the first three positions in a race and by placing the bet on those horses.

Quinella is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first and second, regardless of the order, in a race with at least seven horses to run and by placing the bet on those horses.

Exacta is a bet that is made by predicting in correct order the horses that would come the first and second in a race with at least four horses to run and by placing the bet on those horses.
e) Trifecta (triple) is a bet that is made by predicting in correct order the horses that would come the first and second and third in a race and by placing the bet on those horses.
f) Quartet is a bet that is made by predicting in any order the horses that would come the first, second, third, and fourth in a race and by placing the bet on those horses.
g) The first five in order is a bet that is made by predicting in correct order the horses that would come the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth in a race and by placing the bet on those horses.

(2) The types of bets that could be placed on multiple races are as follows:

a) Double is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in two races and by placing the bet on those horses.
b) Pick 3 is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in three races and by placing the bet on those horses.
c) Pick 4 is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in four races and by placing the bet on those horses.
d) Pick 5 is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in five races and by placing the bet on those horses.
e) Pick 6 is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in six races and by placing the bet on those horses.
f) Pick 7 is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first in seven races and by placing the bet on those horses.

(3) Place “n” is a bet that is made by predicting the horses that would come the first or second in “n” number of races and by placing the bet on those horses.

(4) Single “n” is a bet that is made by indicating a single horse for each race in “n” number of races.

(5) The availability of the bets mentioned above is determined by the approval of the Racing Authority of the proposal made by the Racing Organization or directly by a decision of the Racing Authority.

(6) The availability of new types of bets other than the bets mentioned in this article is possible by the approval of the Racing Authority of the proposal made by the Racing Organization or directly by a decision of the Racing Authority.

SECTION THREE
The Calculation of Betting Returns and the Calculation of the Payout for Wins Returned

The Calculation of Returns for Wins ARTICLE 6 – (1) The winners’ share in wins is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

a) In the case of a dead-heat, the provisions of the article 22 are applied,
b) In the case of a stablemate, the provisions of the article 23 are applied.
(2) In the case of an exiting horse, participation fees paid for the horses not having run in the race are returned.
(3) In the case of race cancellation or walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race or no bets were made on the winning horse or horses, the participation fees are returned.

The Calculation of Returns for Place
ARTICLE 7 – (1) To determine the winners’ share in the place, the amount to be distributed is divided into equal parts according to the number of the place positions. The winners’ share for each position is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).
(2) In case there were no winning combinations in one or more positions of the winning positions in the place, the amount to be distributed that corresponds to these positions are transferred equally to other position or positions.
(3) The calculation of the winners’ share in the place is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) In the case of a dead-heat; the amount to be distributed in the place position where there was a dead-heat is divided into equal parts according to the number of the horses jointly occupying this particular place position. The amount to be received from each place position concerned by each placed horse in dead-heat is added and the new amount to be distributed is found out for each horse.
b) In the case of a stablemate; of the stablemate horses, only the one that had a winning position is a winner. The participation fees for the other stablemate horses that were not considered winners are not taken into account in the calculation of the winners’ share.
c) In the case of an exiting horse; of the horses announced to be running in the race, in case one or more of the horses did not run in the race;

1) The participation fees paid for the horses that did not run in the race are returned.
2) In placed races run by seven or more horses, triple place positions are essential and if the horse with the place bet on turns out to be the first or second or third, that combination is considered to be a winner. Of the horses to take part in the placed race to be run by seven or more horses, in case some of the horses did not take part in the race, the place positions are reduced to two if the number of horses taking part in the race turned out to be less than seven and more than four. If the number of horses taking part in the race turned out to be four or less than four, the participation fees that were paid for all horses are returned.

c) In the case of a race cancellation; the participation fees are returned if the race was cancelled or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race or no bets were made on the winning horse or horses.

d) In the races run by seven or more horses, the number of place positions that is implemented as three for the horses that come the first, second or third could be implemented as two only for the horses that come the first and second upon request by the Racing Organization and approval by the Racing Authority on the condition that this matter is posted beforehand on the official website.

The Calculation of Returns for Place double

ARTICLE 8 – (1) To determine the winners’ share in the place double, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of positions of the place double. The winners’ share for each position is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

(2) Of the winning positions in place double, in case of no winning combinations in one or two positions, the payout corresponding to these positions is transferred equally to other position or positions.

a) In the case of a dead-heat; for the winning combination occurring in the event of dead-heat for the third position, the winners’ share is found out for each winning combination by dividing the portion of the total payout that would correspond to this position in equal parts according to the number of combinations.

b) In the case of a stablemate; of the stablemate horses, only the horse with a winning position is a winner. The participation fees placed on the stablemate horses that were not considered a winner are not taken into account in calculating the winners’ share.

c) In the case of an exiting horse; the participation fees are returned in the event that any of the horses with place double bets exits the race or nobody bets on the winning horse groups or only one horse finishes the race.

The Calculation of Returns for Quinella

ARTICLE 9 – (1) The winners’ share in quinella is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

(2) The calculation of the winners’ share in quinella is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) In the case of a dead-heat; in case multiple horses come first in a dead-heat, other horses with a winning position are not taken into account. The payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing only the horses winning the first position. The winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l). In case multiple horses come second in a dead-heat, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing the horses with the first and second positions. The winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

b) In the case of a stablemate; of the stablemate horses, only the horse with a winning position is a winner. The participation fees placed on the stablemate horses that were not considered a winner are not taken into account in calculating the winners’ share.

c) In the case of an exiting horse; the participation fees are returned in the event that any of the horses with quinella bets exits the race or nobody bets on the winning horse groups or only one horse finishes the race.

c) In the case of a race cancellation; the participation fees are returned if the race was cancelled or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race or no bets were made on the winning horse or horses.

The Calculation of Returns for Exacta

ARTICLE 10 – (1) The winners’ share in exacta is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

(2) The calculation of the winners’ share in exacta is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) In the case of a dead-heat; in case multiple horses come first in a dead-heat, other horses with a winning position are not taken into account. The payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing only the horses winning the first position. The winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l). In case multiple horses come second in a dead-heat, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing the horses with the first and second positions. The winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the subparagraph (1) of the article 3.

b) In the case of a stablemate; of the stablemate horses, only the horse with a winning position is a winner. The participation fees placed on the stablemate horses that were not considered a winner are not taken into account in calculating the winners’ share.

c) In the case of an exiting horse; the participation fees are returned in the event that any of the horses with exacta bets exits the race or nobody bets on the winning horse groups or only one horse finishes the race.

c) In the case of a race cancellation; the participation fees are returned if the race was cancelled or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race or no bets were made on the winning horse or horses.

The Calculation of Returns for Trifecta (triple)

ARTICLE 11 – (1) The winners’ share in trifecta (triple) is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (1).

a) In the case of a dead-heat; in the event that two or more horses finish the race in a dead-heat for the first, second, and third positions, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing the first three positions. The winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (1).

b) In the case of a stablemate; the provisions of the article 23 are applied.

c) In the case of an exiting horse; in the event that there was no dead-heat or a dead-heat at the third position, that any of the three horses with bets on did not run in the race, that two of the other horses in the bettor’s combination containing the exiting horse finished the race in the first and second positions in the order of finish of the race, these combinations are considered to have won. The winners’ share of the quinella is paid to the winners but the share in payout cannot exceed 20% the winners’ share to be paid to those who predicted the first, second, and third positions in the order of finish of the race. In races where trifecta (triple) bets would be made, in case any two of the three horses with bets on did not run in the race, those with a combination that contained a winning horse are considered to have won. The winners’ share that is distributed for a win is paid to the winners but the share in payout cannot exceed 20% the winners’ share to be paid to those who predicted the first, second, and third positions in the order of finish of the race. The shares in payout to be given to the combinations depending on the exiting horse or horses in the case of a dead-heat for the first or second position cannot be more than 50% of the lowest ranking winning share. In the case of a dead-heat for the first position involving three or more horses, the shares in payout depending on the exiting horse cannot be more than the lowest ranking winning share.

c) In case of a roll-over; if nobody predicted in correct order the first, second, and third positions, the payout is carried forward to the next race in the daily official schedule on which the trifecta (triple) play was placed. If the race with no winners was the last triple of the day’s racing schedule with bets on, the payout is carried forward to the first triple play of the next racing schedule of the same hippodrome. The participation fees are returned if this case takes place in the last triple play of a racing schedule that has been announced as the last day of the racing season.

d) In the case of a race cancellation; if the race was cancelled or fewer than three horses finished the race or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race, the participation fees placed on these horses are returned.

The Calculation of Returns for Quartet

ARTICLE 12 – (1) In the quartet, those who predicted the first four horses in the correct order are considered to have won the quartet in order, those who predicted regardless of the order are considered to have won the quartet without an order and get paid separate winners’ shares.

(2) The calculation of the winners’ share in quartet is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) 70% of the payout is distributed to those predicting in the correct order and 30% to those who predicted the first horses regardless of the order. As long as there are no winners with any dead-heat or exiting horse case, the share in payout given to the one with the correct order must be at least twelve times the share in payout given to the one with the incorrect order. If the share of 70% allotted to the one with the correct order does not suffice to satisfy this rule, the share allotted to the one with the incorrect order is reduced and the share allotted to the one with the correct order is increased so that the share for the correct order is twelve times the one for the incorrect order.
b) In case there is nobody predicting the first, second, third, and fourth horses in the correct order, the payout allotted to the one with the correct order is distributed to those who predicted the winning horses regardless of the order.

c) In the case of a dead-heat; in case of a dead-heat involving two or more horses in the first, second, third, and fourth position, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing the first four positions and the winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (I). In the case of a dead-heat, different percentages are applied in the combinations involving the same four horses for the winners’ share of the correct order and the winners’ share of the incorrect order depending on the number of combinations with the correct order. The ratio of six is used for two combinations with the correct order, three for four combinations with the correct order, and two for six combinations with the correct order.

c) In the case of a stablemate; the provisions of the article 23 are applied.

d) In the case of an exiting horse:

1) In the case of a single exiting horse; in the event that any one of the four horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race, if the other horses in the bettor’s combination involving the exiting horse shared the first three positions regardless of the finish order of the race, those who bet on these combinations are considered to have won. The winning combinations with the exiting horse are given 50% of the share in payout allotted to the lowest bet with no order in that race.

2) In the case of two exiting horses; in the races where quartet betting will be made, if any two of the four horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race and the other horses in the bettor’s combination involving the exiting horse shared the first two positions regardless of the finish order of the race, those who bet on these combinations are considered to have won. The winning combinations with two exiting horses are given the winners’ share allotted to the quinella. However, the share in payout cannot exceed 20% of the lowest winners’ share to be paid to those who predicted the quartet in the incorrect order.

3) In the case of three exiting horses; in the races where quartet betting will be made, if any three of the four horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race, those who predicted without the correct order are given the winning share provided that it did not exceed 20% of the lowest winners’ share to be paid.

e) In the case of a roll-over; in case there were no winning combinations involving the first four horses in either correct or incorrect order, the amount to be distributed is carried forward to the next race in the daily official schedule with quartet bets placed on. If the race with no winners was the last quartet of the day’s racing schedule with bets on, the payout is carried forward to the first quartet game of the next racing schedule of the same hippodrome. The participation fees for this game are returned if this case took place in the last quartet game of a racing schedule that has been announced as the last day of the racing season.

f) The case of a race cancellation; In the case of a race cancellation; if the race was cancelled or fewer than four horses finished the race or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race, the participation fees placed on these horses are returned.

g) The Racing Authority is authorized, upon proposal by the Racing Organization, to reduce up to zero the share of 30% allotted to those who won by predicting in incorrect order or to increase it at any rate. This change is implemented after announcement in the media owned by the Racing Organization.

The Calculation of Returns for the first five in order

ARTICLE 13 – (1) The winners’ share in fivefold in order is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (I). The calculation of the winners’ share in fivefold in order is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) In case there is nobody predicting the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth horses in the correct order, the amount to be distributed is carried forward to the next race in the daily official schedule with fivefold in order bets placed on. If the race with no winners was the last fivefold in order of the day’s racing schedule with bets on, the amount is carried forward to the first fivefold in order game of the next racing schedule of the same hippodrome. The participation fees for this game are returned if this case took place in the last fivefold in order game of a racing schedule that has been announced as the last day of the racing season.

b) In the case of a dead-heat; in case of a dead-heat involving two or more horses in the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth position, the payout is divided into equal parts according to the number of the groups containing the first five positions and the winners’ share for each group is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (I).

c) In the case of a stablemate; the provisions of the article 23 are applied.

c) In the case of an exiting horse;

1) In the case of a single exiting horse; in the event that any one of the five horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race, if four of the other horses in the bettor’s combination involving the exiting horse finished the race as the first, second, third, and fourth in the finish order of the race, these combinations are considered to have won. Those who won are given 50% of the share in payout allotted to the lowest bet with no order in that race.

2) In the case of a two exiting horses; in the event that any two of the five horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race with the first five in order to be bet on, if three of the other horses in the bettor’s combination involving the exiting horse finished the race as the first, second, and third in the finish order of the race, these combinations are considered to have won. Those who won are given 50% of the share in payout allotted to the lowest bet with no order in that race.

3) In the case of a three exiting horses; in the event that any three of the five horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race with the first five in order to be bet on, if two of the other horses in the bettor’s combination involving the exiting horse finished the race as the first and second in the finish order of the race, these combinations are considered to have won. Those who won are given the winners’ share allotted to the quinella. However, the winners’ share given according to three exiting horses cannot exceed 20% of the lowest winners’ share to be paid to those who predicted in the correct order the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth horse in the finish order of the race.

4) In the case of a four exiting horses; in the event that any four of the five horses with the bets placed on did not take part in the race with the first five in order to be bet on, those who have combinations containing a winning horse are considered to have won. Those who won are given the winners’ share allotted to the win. However, the winners’ share given according to four exiting horses cannot exceed 20% of the lowest winners’ share to be paid to those who predicted in the correct order the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth horse in the finish order of the race. In cases where no share in payout is paid to the incorrect order, first the share in payout for the incorrect order is found out by dividing the lowest share in payout for the correct order by the ratio between the correct order-incorrect order in cases of first five in order where a share in payout is paid for the one with the incorrect order. The reason for calculating this share is to determine the share in payout to be paid to the exiting horse.

d) In the case of a race cancellation; if the race was cancelled or fewer than five horses finished the race or there was a walkover in the race or none of the horses finished the race, the participation fees placed on these horses are returned.

The Calculation of Returns for Doubles

ARTICLE 14 – (1) The winners’ share in doubles is calculated as described in the article 3, paragraph one, subparagraph (l).

(2) The calculation of the winners’ share in doubles is done according to the principles shown in the following cases:

a) If nobody bet on the horse or horses that won the first place in the first or second or both of the races, those who bet on the horses coming the second in those races are considered to have won.

b) If nobody bet on the horse or horses that came the first and second, the participation fees placed on those horses are returned.

c) In the case of a dead-heat; the provisions of the article 22 are applied.

c) In the case of a stablemate; the provisions of the article 23 are applied.

d) In the case of an exiting horse; of the horses registered in the first and second legs, the participation fees that have been paid for the combinations involving the horses that have been announced not to take part in the race before the start of the race that make up the first leg, are returned. If, after the first one of the races was run, the horse or horses to take part in the second race with bets placed on did not run in the race for any reason, the participation fees for the combinations involving the horse or horses that won in the first race are returned. If the exiting horse had a stablemate that run in the race, the participation fees related to the exiting horse in this case are not returned.

e) In the case of a race cancellation; the participation fees are returned if the first one of the races is cancelled or none of the horses finished the race or there was a walkover.
